Bill Majeski is a veteran of the NYPD where he had a distinguished career for 21 years as a Detective and earned a reputation for being sagacious. His law enforcement expertise encompasses a vast array of criminal and internal investigations, from Homicides through to Political Corruption. That experience has been significantly enhanced over the past 20 years working in the private sector. Bill provides his clients with training, consulting, case and crime analysis and investigative solutions. He has an expertise in interviewing and interrogation techniques and developed "The Power Interview" and "Strategic Interviewing". Since 1974, he has been a practicing polygraph examiner for both law enforcement and the private sector. He has personally conducted thousands of interviews, interrogations and polygraph examinations.

He is currently an Adjunct Professor at Centenary College. For ten years he directed academic programs as the Chief Instructor for the New York Institute of Polygraph Science. Mr. Majeski lectures on interviewing techniques, interpretation of body language, investigative procedures, polygraph methodology and a host of other topics to corporate, private sectors, and government agencies both in the United States and abroad.

Mr. Majeski has written many articles for professional journals and has been published in Parade Magazine. He has had the distinction of being featured in many publications including: Time Magazine, the Sunday New York Times and the New York Daily News. He is the author of "The Lie Detection Book" (a book on body language), which was published by Ballantine Publications. Additionally he is a co-compiler of a textbook titled "Corporate Investigations", published by Lawyers & Judges Publishing Company.
